Dear Mrs. Manley:

I am sorry to again trouble you relative to the Dandridge matter. I have written Mr. Dandridge on several occasions, which mail he received, but apparently he is not interested in meeting his obligations. We also requested information as to where our goods are and he refuses to answer.

I wish you would get in touch with him and advise him that unless we hear from him within the next ten days, we will be obliged to go to the police court and swear out a warrant for his arrest for concealing mortgaged property. I can assure you it would be very distasteful for us to do this but there will be no other alternative for us if he continues to refuse to answer our letters.

Thank you very much for your interest in this matter.

Yours truly
